

Elves' Workshop in the North Pole ...

Hellooo! It's me, Elfie from the North Pole! Father Christmas has given me a Special Spring Mission, and has lent me his computer so I can write and tell you all about it. I'm in a humungous hurry, so I'll have to be quick!

BOOM!

AARGH! Noooooo! Marty's just done one of his Exploding Experiments, and now my favourite writing paper has burst into FLAMES! Ohhh dear ... I suppose I'll have to use this paper until my new delivery arrives next week.

Anyway - more importantly (and URGENTLY!) my mission is to tell you that the Easter Bunny WILL be visiting as usual this year. Phew! I know some of you were worried, but I've been asked to EGgsplain (HA HA!) how its Super-Shimmery fur has Extra-Magical Qualities that protect against things like viruses. So it's COMPLETELY SAFE to make the usual Delicious Deliveries to you and your family!

But I must tell you ... there was very nearly an incident with the chocolate supply this year. We discovered Marty (with very starry eyes, looking all hot and bothered) trying to push a gigantesnormous Egg-Shaped Package behind The Sleigh Shed. Looking more closely, we saw it had a label on it saying, 'To the Easter Bunny - Extra-Special Super-Chocolatey Springtime Delivery'. Oh no! It had been delivered to the North Pole instead! Do you know what? I really think Marty was planning to eat it ALL HIMSELF!

Luckily, we managed to post those lovely treats right back to the Easter Bunny just in time for this year's visits!

Must dash!

Lots of love

Elfie
xxx